

I Will Be Valiant Fill in the Blank

How to Play:

Sing through I Will Be Valiant once before introducing your activity.

Put the missing what comes next posters up on the board.

Ask for a volunteer to come up and fill in one missing word while you sing the song. This will let you sing through the song 9 times! Or double up and do 2 words per time through the song with two different helpers.

Any of the write-in keywords the kids now get to clap instead! Keep singing the ones that are blank or use our extension idea below for another fun option.

Continue singing through the song and filling in the missing word blanks until you've added them all. Then, singing with ONLY the filled in words for one final time through the song.

Missing Keywords: Valiant, Work, Teachings, People, Servant, Cov'nants (Covenants), Stand, Right, Depend

Extension Activities:

- For an added challenge, SKIP singing any of the words that are blank. Don't worry, the kids will still be able to figure them out if you've spent any time with this song before. Or sing the missing words with everyone sticking their tongues out! It'll make them silly and harder to understand, while still giving a clue!
- Scramble up the page order and have the kids put the posters back in order. Cut each sheet of paper in half (on the 4-page option).
- Bring a bunch of fun colorful writing utensils like markers, crayons, pastels, maybe even a watercolor paint set to make it even more fun to fill in the blank.
- Let the kids draw a picture instead of write the word (or do both). Then have the singers act out an action that matches the drawing while singing the word.
- Consider using this as your flip chart for the song!! The kids will love that they helped to make it!
